Polio Vaccine on Mass Basis Available Soon

Polio immunization by Sabin oral vaccine on a mass basis will have been made available to everyone in California by the end of this year under state and county medical society leadership, it was reported by the Council of the California Medical Association.

A resume of county and area polio programs revealed that coordinated campaigns, using the Sabin oral vaccine and enlisting total community support under the direction of the individual county societies, will have been conducted where needed by the end of the year.

Heavy concentration will occur following summer vacation in order to reach maximum population potential, according to Dr. Omer W. Wheeler, C.M.A. president. "People are urged, however, to continue Salk vaccine injections — particularly during the summer months — until concentrated programs of oral immunization are undertaken
